1 (Case called)

2 THE DEPUTY CLERK: Counsel, please state your name for 3 the record.

4 MR. BURCHFIELD: Good afternoon, your Honor. Bobby
5 Burchfield and my partner, Matthew Leland, from King & Spalding
6 on behalf of the plaintiff NARL Refinery Partnership.

7 THE COURT: Good afternoon to both of you.

8 MR. BALBER: Good afternoon, your Honor. Scott Balber 9 from Herbert Smith Freehills on behalf of BP. And with me are 10 my colleagues, Laurence Shore and Christian Leathley.

11 THE COURT: Good afternoon to all of you as well.

12 So I want to do two things at this conference. First,
13 I'd just really like to hear out the parties' positions 14 generally. This is not intended to be an oral argument by any 15 means, but just to hear you out generally. And then I really 16 want to set a schedule for a response to the motion for the 17 preliminary injunction and talk about scheduling, all right?

18 So, Mr. Burchfield?

19 MR. BURCHFIELD: Thank you, your Honor.

20 The narrow issue in this case is whether BP should be 21 enjoined from terminating, interrupting or suspending its 22 performance under the contract. We refer to it as the crude 23 PSA, which is attached to the complaint. As your Honor knows,
24 under that contract BP is the exclusive supplier of crude oil 25 to my client's refinery, and it is the principal purchaser of

G1tenarc

1 refined products from that refinery. If it does interrupt, 2 suspend or terminate that contract, my client cannot remain in 3 business. And that has significant effects not only for my 4 client, for the local economy up in Newfoundland -- the 5 refinery employs almost 500 people and at least 200 other
6 contractors depend on it for employment. The local economy 7 depends on it for fuel oil, among other products, during this 8 winter season. So any interruption of crude supply or any 9 interruption of picking up the products, which would create an 10 inventory storage space for my client, would essentially 11 interrupt the ability of the business to continue.

12 The more fundamental issues of the breach of contract
13 are pending before an arbitration, before the American 14 Arbitration Association right now. The arbiter panel is --

15 THE COURT: What's the status?

16 MR. BURCHFIELD: The parties have agreed conditionally
17 to a procedure where each party will nominate an arbitrator, 18 and those two arbitrators will then choose the chair of the 19 arbitration tribunal. Both parties have submitted nominations.
20 The AAA is vetting those nominations right now. We are 21 expecting to hear from the AAA and get a conflict form from the 22 AAA maybe in the next two days. The arbitrators will then have 23 to be impaneled, those two, and then they will have to agree
24 upon a chair. The same process for vetting that arbitrator, 25 the chair arbitrator, will need to go through.

G1tenarc

1 So we're talking probably a few weeks before the 2 arbitration panel can be seated.

3 THE COURT: Okay. And do you have any application 4 with respect to the timing of the PI hearing?

5 MR. BURCHFIELD: Your Honor, we believe we would like 6 to have the hearing as quickly as the Court's schedule permits.
7 As you know from reading our papers, BP has threatened to 8 either terminate the contract or suspend performance four 9 times. And within the last month it is purported to declare 10 force majeure and claimed it was going to refuse to pick up 11 product. Those threats have to be taken seriously. And we 12 want some clarification that the contract is going to remain in 13 effect while the AAA panel does its business.

14 So we would like to have the hearing very quickly, and 15 an understanding that pending that hearing, the parties will 16 continue to perform their obligations under the contract.

17 THE COURT: Do you think any discovery is necessary in 18 advance of the hearing?

19 MR. BURCHFIELD: Your Honor, we would probably like to 20 take the deposition of two or three people.

21 The issues here are narrow. This does not implicate
22 the entire breach of contract action, which is pending before 23 the AAA, which I'm sure we'll do a fine job of resolving those 24 issues.

25 So the only issues as we see them here are whether

G1tenarc

1 there really is imminent irreparable harm in the event of a 2 suspension or termination of performance and whether there is a 3 likelihood of my client prevailing on the merits that it's got 4 it that there is a threat that the contract is going to be 5 suspended or terminated. Those are two very discrete issues, 6 so we think any discovery would be very narrow.

7 THE COURT: Okay. Thank you.

8 MR. BALBER: Thank you, your Honor.

9 I'd like to, in addition, give you an overview of the 10 case, try to dissuade you from going down this road at all.

11 THE COURT: And by "this road" you mean by even having 12 a hearing?

13 MR. BALBER: By "this road," I mean briefing; I mean 14 hearing; I mean all of it. Let me explain why.

15 THE COURT: Okay.

16 MR. BALBER: They are both too late and too early.
17 They claim in their papers that we started threatening them to 18 terminate the contract back in April. They claim we threatened 19 them again in August; again, in December.

20 Now, over the course of this nine-month period we 21 haven't terminated the contract. But if they were so concerned 22 about the imminency of our alleged threats, I queried why 23 they've waited nine months to seek relief from the Court. The 24 answer to that is it is litigation tactics vis-a-vis the 25 arbitration that we commenced in December 2015. And not only

G1tenarc

1 have they brought this proceeding in this court, in addition to 2 the arbitration we filed, they've brought a separate proceeding
3 in the Southern District of Texas, claiming tortious 4 interference with the contract, based on, guess what, those 5 very same letters that they've appended to the preliminary 6 injunction application.

7 Now, we steadfastly denied that we threatened to 8 terminate the contract. Your Honor can read the letters for 9 yourself. We reserved our rights. We haven't taken any 10 action. But even if we did, your Honor, why are we doing this 11 now? If your Honor were to decide I will not sign this order 12 to show cause, I'll deny this order to show cause, they have 13 leave to refile their application anytime they want. If BP
14 decides on Monday that they're going to terminate the contract, 15 I have no doubt Mr. Burchfield will get an audience with this 16 Court for us to come back and set a briefing schedule on what 17 is not a speculative or hypothetical termination but an actual 18 termination.

19 THE COURT: Well, would you be willing to consent or 20 reach any kind of agreement essentially to continue to supply 21 the refinery while the arbitration is pending?

22 MR. BALBER: Let me tell you the problem with that,
23 your Honor. The short answer, as I've said, we have no 24 intention of terminating, period. But let me tell you the 25 problem with the suggestion your Honor is making. There are

G1tenarc

1 actually three parties involved in this relationship. Citi is 2 another -- Citi is another entity that provides financing to 3 the refinery and has liens over the various assets, etc.

4 So here are the problems I see with us agreeing to 5 maintain the contract. What happens if NARL fails to perform?
6 What will be our remedy? What happens, your Honor, and the way 7 the contract is structured, we provide the crude and they 8 provide back to us the refined petroleum products. So what 9 happens if we agree to this injunction or agree to a 10 stipulation where we provide the crude and they decide not to 11 provide the oil back to us, the refined oil? Do I have to then 12 run into court to get relief? What if they stop paying us?
13 What if Citi decides that the risk to Citi, a nonparty to this 14 action, is too great and they assert their contractual rights?
15 Do I need to continue to provide crude oil on a daily basis, 16 100,000 barrels a day in this period of uncertainty? I don't 17 want to ask your Honor a question in response to your question, 18 but it depends on what your Honor is looking for. It depends 19 on whether they're willing to post a bond sufficient to secure 20 and protect our interests during the pendency of whatever 21 injunction or stipulation we put in place. So it's 22 complicated, your Honor.

23 And the last piece of it is they threatened -- they 24 indicate that we took advantage of a force majeure clause in 25 December because there was storms in Houston. We couldn't

G1tenarc

1 deliver the oil on time. They claim that was some anticipatory
2 breach. We disagree. The facts will be what they are. But 3 what happens if there's another storm or another political 4 event or some other catastrophe? Are we going to be in 5 contempt because we can't deliver the oil on the day at the 6 time and the terms of the contract?

7 So this is all the question of why we are doing this 8 now, when these gentlemen have -- I don't know if either one is 9 admitted in New York, but they have a New York office. And if 10 any issue comes up that requires the Court's immediate 11 attention, they can come back with a TRO. And I suspect your 12 Honor will demand me in court immediately to answer questions 13 as to why we've breached, why we've terminated and why you 14 shouldn't set an immediate scheduling for briefing and for oral 15 argument.

16 But all we've done now is they've claimed they sent in 17 letters, which your Honor can read, as long ago as nine months
18 ago. So we're going to have this briefing schedule, 19 depositions, a preliminary injunction hearing based upon some 20 threat that began nine months ago, if you even interpret it 21 that way, that we've never acted on.

22 So why now? And of course, your Honor, we steadfastly 23 contest their claim of irreparable harm. What is going to 24 happen if it were the case that Monday morning BP says, you 25 know what, Mr. Balber, what we told you on Friday, we've

G1tenarc

1 changed our mind. We are terminating. What's going to happen?
2 They will come and get a TRO. They have the ability to seek 3 money damages. How is anybody hurt? Where is the fire?

4 So if it were not for the pending arbitration, if it 5 were not for the pending proceeding in the Southern District of 6 Texas that they commenced against BP over these same issues, I 7 might have a different view. But to undertake this road based 8 on some speculative, hypothetical circumstance where there's no 9 actual harm that can't be remedied by money damages? So that's 10 the set of affairs, your Honor.

11 Lastly, they claim that the people of Newfoundland are 12 going to suffer grave consequences in the event that we stop 13 delivering oil. Where is an affidavit from the Premier of 14 Newfoundland? There have been two circumstances over the last 15 five years where that refinery was shut down for 70 days in 16 2010. The people of Newfoundland survived, and just this last 17 February there was a threatened strike at the plant by those 18 500 workers. There was no injunction. There was no parade of 19 horribles referenced in the newspaper. There was nothing.

20 This is about gamesmanship, your Honor, and nothing
21 else, and your Honor should not countenance it. And if you 22 need to, we can come back anytime and you can deal with it at 23 that time.

24 Thank you, Judge.

25 THE COURT: Look, first of all, let me ask plaintiff

G1tenarc

1 in response: Is plaintiff willing to put up a bond? And if 2 so, you know, how much?

3 MR. BURCHFIELD: Your Honor, in our view a bond is not 4 necessary to get them to do what they're contractually 5 obligated to do. I'm not hearing clearly from counsel whether 6 BP is committing to the Court that they're not going to 7 terminate or suspend.

8 THE COURT: Isn't it speculative at this point? Or is 9 it? I mean, I don't have a response yet, so it's hard for me 10 to judge here sitting here today. But is it speculative as to 11 whether or not they're not going to continue to fulfill their 12 obligations?

13 MR. BURCHFIELD: Well, your Honor, they continue to 14 threaten to do it. If they're to be believed, then there is an 15 imminent threat and the consequences of them doing it, as we 16 set forth in our affidavit, in Mr. Amin's affidavit, would be 17 devastating to the refinery and devastating to the local 18 economy. I don't know what the situation was there in 2010, 19 but the affidavit indicates that currently this refinery is 20 supplying winter fuel oil. I believe the number is 40 21 truckloads a day to the local economy up there. And there are 22 people employed by the refinery, so shutting this down would be 23 serious irreparable harm.

24 Now, counsel suggests that, how are they protected if 25 my client takes the crude oil and won't sell them back the

G1tenarc

1 refined oil? We've got no choice. There's no other buyer for 2 it. If we take the crude oil and refine it, we only have 3 limited space, which is one of the reasons that we need them to 4 continue picking it up. The notion that my client is going to 5 breach this contract when it has never threatened to do so, 6 when it has never done anything that puts an imminent threat of 7 breach, that seems to me to be highly, highly, highly 8 speculative.

9 Here we have a situation where BP has, in fact, 10 threatened on four occasions and declared force majeure on two 11 others without basis. And we're in a position where if they're 12 going to continue performing the contract, then they should so 13 stipulate before the Court. If they're not willing to make 14 that stipulation, then let's have a hearing and determine 15 whether we've got good grounds to suspect that they may 16 terminate the contract.

17 MR. BALBER: Two things I actually need to read to 18 your Honor.

19 THE COURT: Okay.

20 MR. BALBER: To read to your Honor from the papers 21 that have been submitted in this case in the arbitration.

22 Thing one is Exhibit H to their application, which is 23 the last letter dated December 31, 2015, from BP to NARL. It's 24 in your Honor's papers, but I want to read the sentence -- this 25 is the last sentence of the letter:

G1tenarc

1 THE COURT: Sorry. Where are you reading from?

2 MR. BALBER: This is Exhibit H, I'm sorry, which is 3 the December 31st letter. I'll let your Honor find it, if you 4 want a moment.

5 THE COURT: Yes. Go ahead.

6 MR. BALBER: First sentence of the last paragraph.
7 The actions referenced above clearly demonstrate that BP 8 remains committed to meeting its obligations.

9 That's one of the letters that they are using -- the 10 most recent one I might add -- that they're using for the 11 predicate for their claim that we're going to terminate the 12 contract, that one.

13 The second thing I need to read to you is something 14 which they conveniently didn't attach to their papers. And 15 that is their answer and counterclaim in the arbitration. We 16 have copies for the Court, if you want, but I will read to you 17 the first prayer for relief; NARL, not BP. What they seek is, 18 quote, equitable termination of the crude PSA, the contract, 19 after 90 days' notice and an opportunity for NH to make 20 arrangements for alternative supplies of crude oil, etc. The 21 only party in this room that has claimed or sought to terminate 22 the contract is them. Is them. In their proceeding in the 23 arbitration. And they're asking your Honor to brief the 24 question of whether we should be enjoined from terminating when 25 that's the relief they're seeking in the arbitration?

G1tenarc

1 MR. BURCHFIELD: Your Honor, counsel interrupted me
2 before I was finished. Let me respond directly to that point.

3 He read you the correct passage. My client does not 4 have confidence that BP is going to continue performing this 5 contract. And we do want equitable termination in the 6 arbitration, but with 90 days' notice, which is exactly what we 7 plead here is the amount of time it would take my client to get 8 to get an alternative supplier and alternative purchaser. That 9 is completely consistent with our position here.

10 Counsel also read about BP's protest after they had 11 threatened to suspend and terminate the contract, that they at 12 that moment were not intending to. And they subsequently 13 declared force majeure twice within the last month. And only 14 when my client wrote back sternly and told them there was no 15 basis for it, that the ship they claimed was fogged into 16 Houston harbor was really in New York harbor, did they relent 17 on that demand.

18 The point here, your Honor, is that BP has engaged in 19 a course of conduct where they have repeatedly failed to 20 provide adequate assurances under the UCC to my client, which 21 is under New York UCC a breach of their obligations. And it's 22 an anticipatory repudiation of the contract. We are entitled 23 to those assurances. And they have refused to give those 24 assurances.

25 What we're asking the Court to do is to allow us to

G1tenarc

1 come in and prove that there is a serious risk to my client
2 that they're going to terminate the contract.

3 He mentioned the Houston action, if you want to hear
4 about that. Your Honor, that action does not involve this 5 contract. Counsel misspoke. That involves a contract that my 6 client has for financing with Citigroup Energy Canada. We 7 allege in the Houston action that they have not only directly 8 interfered by going to CEC directly, but they've also through 9 these letters and others demanded that CEC cease negotiations 10 with us and also not -- shall exercise its contract rights to 11 cut off our finance. So that's a completely different action 12 than this.

13 What we're asking here is just for peace of mind that 14 this contract is going to run its course while the arbitration
15 is pending. If the arbitrators decide to give us equitable 16 termination, they will do that and the contract will unwind in 17 an orderly manner. In the meantime, we should not be at risk 18 of BP cutting off its performance of this contract.

19 THE COURT: Thank you.

20 MR. BALBER: Your Honor, if this Court starts 21 entertaining peace of mind injunctions every time a party is 22 concerned that their counterparty is going to terminate the 23 contract, the Court is going to need to hire more clerks 24 because it is very often the case that parties have trepidation 25 about their counterparty breaching a contract to terminate.

G1tenarc

1 And that trepidation and the desire for peace of mind is not 2 the kind of irreparable harm that warrants the jurisdiction of 3 this Court.

4 And I'll go back to what I suggested earlier. In the 5 event we seek to terminate, in the event we send a letter
6 saying we're not performing, we're terminating, I will be back 7 the same day, your Honor. And I'll get you a brief within 24 8 hours, and you can decide at that point.

9 But, your Honor, to do it now, based upon this whole 10 set of speculative circumstances when we have a pending
11 arbitration, is just a waste of everyone's time, your Honor.

12 MR. BURCHFIELD: Your Honor --

13 THE COURT: I'll hear you out.

14 MR. BURCHFIELD: Your Honor, New York UCC Section 15 2609.4 and 2610 specifically give us the right to seek 16 assurances of performance if we are uncomfortable with their 17 performance, if we have good grounds for discomfort. We have 18 twice sought that assurance from BP, and BP has twice sought to 19 provide it. That's a breach under New York law. It's a breach 20 of -- and it's an anticipatory repudiation. We're not just 21 standing here saying this might happen. They are already in 22 breach of their obligations, and they failed to give us what 23 the law allows. That's why we're seeking an injunction.

24 MR. BALBER: And that's why we're arbitrating, your 25 Honor. That's exactly why we're arbitrating, because whether

G1tenarc

1 or not we breached, whether or not -- remember, we're the 2 claimant. Whether they breached is a question the arbitrator
3 is going to decide. And money damages will be awarded and 4 somebody will pay somebody else. None of that bears on the 5 question of whether this Court should entertain a preliminary 6 injunction to prevent us to do something that we have no
7 intention of doing.

8 THE COURT: What I want to do in the first instance is 9 I'm going to ask you to get together and try and see if any 10 agreement can be reached without the litigation in this court 11 that, as defendant suggests, may be wasteful.

12 So I'm going to ask you to do that. I'm going to ask 13 you to report back to me. I don't want to destroy your 14 weekend, but let's say no later than Wednesday. You can do it 15 earlier, if you want to do it, but by Wednesday I'd like a 16 joint letter indicating whether some agreement can be reached 17 that can give you the peace of mind you need to proceed with 18 the arbitration without litigation that may indeed be wasteful.

19 In the event you tell me the answer is no, then I'm 20 going to have defendants respond quickly. And I'd ask you to 21 get together and talk about a briefing schedule; and if I think 22 that a hearing is indeed warranted, what each side would want 23 in the way of depositions.

24 And I believe, Mr. Burchfield, you've already spoken 25 to a number of depositions you'd like to take, what,

G1tenarc

1 Mr. Balber, you think is necessary -- I know you don't think 2 anything is necessary, but if we're to get to that and sort of 3 the timing, realistic timing on a hearing.

4 But in the first instance I really want to see if you
5 can work this out; if there's some language you can stipulate 6 to that can give you the comfort you need to get through the 7 arbitration, which is already kind of on its way. So why don't 8 we do that.

9 If you think you would like assistance from the Court 10 in any way, let me know, whether it's the magistrate judge, 11 whether it's a mediator. Obviously you're welcome to hire a 12 private mediator, but you'd have to bear the costs of that, or 13 your clients would. Let me know that, and I'm happy to offer 14 whatever services you think the Court can provide and in the 15 most productive manner, all right?

16 So you'll get me a joint letter by Wednesday. And if 17 it -- if not, I'll hear the defendants out in a prompt manner,
18 and then I'll make a decision on whether we need to go forward 19 with the hearing, okay?

20 MR. BURCHFIELD: Very well. Thank you, your Honor.

21 MR. BALBER: Thank you, Judge.

22 THE COURT: Is there anything else you'd like to say 23 before we adjourn?

24 MR. BURCHFIELD: Just a clarification. If we do 25 decide we would like assistance from the magistrate in

G1tenarc

1 reporting back to you on Wednesday, how would we go about doing
2 that? I'm inclined to say yes, but I would like to consult 3 with counsel about that.

4 THE COURT: Just let me know by letter. I think 5 everything should be transparent and on the docket; not 6 materials relevant with respect to settlement. But if you're 7 amenable to that, and if you'd like a reference, just submit a 8 letter to me. I'll make a reference right away. Judge Ellis
9 is assigned to this case. I don't know his schedule offhand, 10 but I'm happy to make the reference as soon as I can.

11 I personally am also happy to get involved, if you 12 think that would be useful. That being said, it may be that 13 I'm the one deciding a motion, so that may not be most prudent.
14 But just let me know what together you think would be most 15 productive, okay?

16 MR. BURCHFIELD: Thank you, your Honor.

17 THE COURT: Thanks. Have a nice weekend.

18 (Adjourned)
